Home and away, here are three hot new bolthole ideas on our radar for spring

1 The seaside town of Southwold in Suffolk has seen an interior design revolution in the form of the Swan Hotel, recently re-opened. Bold wallpaper, plush fabrics and a zingy colour palette give it a truly unique feel, and with an excellent restaurant on site too, it's the perfect escape-to-the-coast bolthole. Prices from £200, theswansouthwold.co.uk 2 Pale walls, pared-back furnishings and guaranteed sunshine frame the backdrop to Don Totu in Puglia, where you can escape on a wellness week this spring with on-site fitness classes including gym and circuit training. The all-inclusive six-night stay is from 850 euro PP. For dates see dontotu.it 3 Design aficionados are flocking to the Radisson Blu Royal Hotel in Copenhagen, which was the first design hotel, created by iconic Arne Jacobsen in 1960. It has been given a sensitive refurb by designers Space Copenhagen, with dark walls, sculptural furniture and lots of mid-century marble and brass details. Doubles are from £132, radissonblu.com
